

Powerful Statement of Purpose Examples

The main goal of the personal statement is to convince your readers, the faculty in this case, that you're the right candidate they are looking for. A good statement of purpose sample will help you achieve it by showing how to write one to highlight the person behind the successes is and what the potential of this person is for the graduate school.

Statement of Purpose Sample Guide

Write the introduction

Introduce yourself to the readers and tell them your motivations, passions and interest. You should also be able to tell them why you are applying for the graduate study, as what you can see in a statement of purpose graduate school sample. The introduction must be clear and to the point without unnecessary sentences and words that will just take up much essential space.

Summarize your previous experience

In this part, you should be able to summarize your undergraduate study as well as any graduate career. You can highlight the research or studies you have led or conducted. Write who you were with, the project title, the results and your responsibilities. You should also write in a technical manner based on the accepted and used style in your industry. Remember, the experts themselves are those that will read your paper.

You should also write about an important thesis or research project you have completed. You may also include those that you have achieved aside from your curricular ones, as what you can see in the statement of purpose graduate school sample.

Additionally, write about your work experience, especially those relevant to the field you are trying to apply and study you want to participate. In this case, you can write about relevant experience in the area in the graduate program you want to study.

Highlight the relevance of your current activities

In the statement of purpose graduate school, you should also relate and write about your past work experience or any graduate study you had before applying for a particular program. You can mention about non-profit organization, responsibilities and team you have worked with. Also, highlight how your experience has helped you in focusing to the graduate studies.

Write about academic or scholarly interests

Talk about what you want to study about in the graduate study in the statement of purpose graduate school. Include enough details that will convince the faculty that you truly understand the research scope and discipline. Also, talk about your current research themes.

Add your interest area. You can define a problem, pose a question or talk about a theme or concept that you want to address. You can also write about the questions arising from modern research.

Don't forget writing about the research and the professors that you are interested in. If the research of the professors is aligned with your interest, you can also write this in your paper, as what you can see in the statement of purpose for graduate school sample. Make enough research about a specific program, including some names of the professors you might want to work with.

Finish your statement of purpose for graduate school in a positive manner, highlighting your readiness and enthusiasm for the challenges that might be ahead of you.

Tips from Statement Of Purpose Graduate School Example

1. Remember that the admissions committee wants to read your story. They want to learn more about the person applying to their university. These experts want to know more about the person behind the achievements and successes. They also want to learn about your self-motivation, discipline and commitment when you become a part of their program.
2. Write in an active voice, not in the passive tone, as what you can learn from a good statement of purpose for graduate school. By using an active tone, you can deliver your message directly to the readers of your statement. Active sentences are also more interesting to read than the passive ones. Always write in an active voice if you want to get the attention of your readers.
3. Turn the negatives into positives. If you met challenges, including illnesses, poverty or anything that have affected your grades, you should state it. Show them your perseverance despite all the obstacles you have met along the way.
4. Link everything for emphasis and focus. Make sure that every sentence counts and each has an important place in the paper to avoid wasting space. Remember, most universities have their set word count for a statement of purpose. Make wise use of it by eliminating those sentences or statements that do not add value in your paper.
5. Speaking of word count, many programs require statement of purpose format and word count between 500 and 1000 words. Many of them also require 12 font size and single spacing. To be sure, you should read the instructions carefully to ensure that you are following them well. Failing to do so might turn off the committee, thinking that you are not responsible enough to comply even with small instructions. Read about the statement of purpose format and guidelines prior to writing. For more guidance, read good SOP samples online.

6. Be able to revise your paper. Check for SOP samples for a good idea on how to write the paper.

Time is money, and nobody sets out to waste it. At a core of a business lies its finances, and how it allocates this resource to expand further. It is obviously a very delicate balance, and requires constant maintenance. I studied finance in my undergraduate studies because I've always been intrigued by the idea of using money to make more money. Only the addition of time and careful investing makes that reaction thermodynamically possible. A MBA in Finance will give me the investing and management skills I need to ensure that finances are carefully kept in balance to allow my firm to thrive.

Since graduating, I've seen some of my classmates make tens of thousands of dollars only to lose it all on failed investments. While no business is without risk, there is a strategy to minimize that risk. That strategy is what I intend to find, and to be able to make that strategy customizable to businesses. A MBA will give me the tools I need to understand the costs of managing a business, and teach me to recognize ventures that are worth spending on. My goal is to use this knowledge to start my own consulting firm to provide companies with viable financial strategies and accurate risk analysis portfolios.

Finance is a very exciting field that combines understanding of market behavior with aspects of statistical modeling and prediction. I have always enjoyed everything about numbers, especially in statistical manipulation. A MBA in finance would place me in a perfect position to network with many companies to provide me with a pool of possible clientele, which leads directly to my career goal of opening my own firm. Behind every successful business is a very savvy finance plan, and I want to be the one that develops those.

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

PhD IN PSYCHOLOGY

I have had friends who would often raise a debate with regards to third sex. Being a delicate matter and being sensitive in discussing things like this, I kept mummed. But while these friends talked about how and why such behavior surface in some people, my mind started to wander why there are certain behaviors that lead to a taboo. This inspired me understand human behavior until I found myself finding some answers to questions about insanity, personalities, abnormalities and those out of the norm. Since then, and at the same time, I also felt deep compassion to people who are being discriminated based on life's unavoidable yet destined circumstances.

My undergraduate course has provided me with better understanding of how an individual behaves the way he does. The genes, past, experiences, the environment, the motivations, the coping mechanisms that dictate overt and covert behaviors, are all shaping carefully in my mind. The more compelling one is to find the cure and remedy in simple up to complex disorders - I never thought that those simple debates would have great impact to my career. Today, when the same friends ask me to talk about the same issues, I don't get silent anymore. But rather, I try to educate them in the most humble way on how they can help rather throw useless criticisms that mar some people's hopes. I know that there are reasons why I have to hear those words. I know now that my role goes beyond understanding what went wrong but correcting notions (even to friends) that aren't helpful.

A few years from now, I shall be ready to establish my own counseling office. I plan to assist victims of bullying and discrimination because of their inborn incapacities. I believe that everyone deserves a good life and as responsible and sensitive human beings, we were born to share what we know for the goodness of others. I have found that XX community offers didactic strategies that are suitable to what I need for my PhD; hence, it is with great pride and honor to get admitted and given the chance to prove my worth as a professional Psychologist.

MASTER'S IN EDUCATION

I was born in a suburb area in India. As a son of a construction worker, education is as precious as a diamond. Living with four siblings, my dream of finishing high school is like living in a five-star hotel room. Even if my mother already told me that I should stop going to school to give way to my eldest brother to finish college, I still went on despite their disapproval. Because our family scarcely survived with the basic food necessities, I looked for part-time jobs in order to continue my studies. After two to three months of adjustment in working in the construction site, where I was allowed to work, I have soon been able to assist my father with other expenses at home. Aside from being able to continue my studies, I finally got the approval of my parents to continue what I have been dreaming of - to finish school which can open an opportunity to land a decent, office job.

The most rewarding job that I can think of is being a teacher. Aside from class room discussions, I plan to mentor intelligent and persevering students who may have the same economic background like me. I also plan to work as a private tutor for students who are unfortunate of enrolling to schools. Although basic education is free in our country, achieving college degree and higher education is a privilege for those who can financially sustain it. This is the reason why I want to be part of such discipline. I would like to help children who are willing to go to school but can't, due to poverty. And I do not just plan to give my time - I plan to teach through the most quality education possible. I plan to make the most out of this practice in order to inspire others - that poverty should not be a hindrance towards the achievements of dreams. And I can only achieve such quality if I further myself first by education. I plan to take up a Master's degree on the next school year and based on strategic location of XX University in Delhi, not setting aside its quality output, well-designed curriculum and professional opportunities, I think it is the best choice for a higher education. It would be such an honor to get admitted in such reputable institution.
